Align and Strengthen Your System of Collaborative Teams

One of the core components of an effective Multi-Tiered System of Support (MTSS) is data-driven collaborative teams. Unfortunately, often these teams work in isolation of each other, or they seem ineffective because they lack clarity of purpose.

In this learning series you will get a chance to tighten up the alignment between all of the critical collaborative teams within your system: the district administrative team, building leadership team, PLCs, and tiered services & supports. How are these teams directly connected and dependent on each other? How do they communicate with each other and how does the data flow from space to space?

As we dig deeper into each team, we will articulate each team's purpose, responsibilities, and data cycles. Through this work we will examine your balanced assessment system, and also recognize the critical role each of these teams play in disrupting inequities and creating positive outcomes for kids.

Work time will be built into each session. Bring team members to get the most out of your time. The learning from session to session is connected and intentional. Please plan to attend all sessions.
